Schools	X	X	Beams of light can be quickly spotted by spraying into the air, letting it spread evenly, then darken the room to show the beams in mid-air.
Police, FBI, CIA, CSI Units	X	X	For bullet trajectory, spray into the air, darken other light source and place laser pointers into bullet holes with a small dowel to see where several points of laser beams meet. Helps determine origination and location of gunshot.
Laser Beam & Light Shows	X	X	Spray the area, use dim lighting. Beams should look even from source to contact point. Spray minimum 30 seconds for each application.
Mirror Balls	X	X	Turn down lighting and point light beams toward the mirror ball. Beams should look even from source to contact point. Spray minimum 30 seconds for each application. Wait to evenly spread and spray again. Great for wedding parties, discos, nightclubs and more.
Steam Effects		X	Use Fantasy FX Automatic Spray. It sprays straight up like steam. Open the hood of a car, place it on a cardboard box behind the radiator, backlight for a great look of steam coming out of the car. Hold a can behind the stove so the edge of a tea kettle is lined up with the steam. Front light or use a side light for the best visual look. Photograph far away or close up for a great steam effect.
Beams of Sunlight	X	X	Look for sunlight filtering through the leaves of trees. Place Fantasy FX Automatic Spray behind a tree, bush or rock (out of sight) and allow several minutes of spray to spread evenly throughout the area. May need several cans if larger area. Stand back 10' or more and watch as the beams of light suddenly appear like magic.
Photography	X	X	Add dimension, ambiance, and interest to your photographs. Place behind the person being filmed and backlight for smoke, side light for steam, or front light for a light haze effect with moving swirls of haze while filming. Add a color changing light for colored smoke results that keep changing as you film.
